FINE ARTS A PRIORITY AT BCS

Nancy Layton

My first exposure to art education came from my first grade teacher, Miss Marshall. She had the most beautiful voice and would play the piano, in our classroom, as we sang along. Colouring and painting came next where I was taught to move beyond black and white to a rainbow of colours. Later, Mr. White taught us music and he would go through at least one-yard stick per class. His enthusiasm and passion would often take over and he would smack the stick on his desk to get our attention or to make a point. Once high school hit I was encouraged to be "serious" and focus on the important subjects such as Latin and Physics. There was little opportunity or encouragement to continue taking arts classes.

Today, the arts continue to struggle as budget cuts leave less money available for specialists and materials. Schools are being forced to decide which courses will be taught and where priorities will be given. Too often it is the Arts that are diminished or cut all together.

Not so at BCS.

BCS and KHC have strong traditions in music, theatre and art and these are the foundation of our arts program today. All students in Forms II and III receive regular instruction in each medium and there are seldom students in the senior forms without at least one arts course. But it doesn't stop there.

Most nights, students are welcome in the art classroom while three bands and the choir each have two practice sessions a week. The Players' Club not only exposes students to acting but also the many other tasks to be fulfilled in order for a production to be successful.

The 20/20 Vision Capital Campaign has, from the start, recognized the need to up-grade our arts facilities and the initial plans are exciting. Music and Drama rehearsal areas will soon be side by side while the Art room will move to larger facilities in the old library. Opportunities for students to develop their artistic side will be that much greater as a result.

There is considerable research showing the benefits of the arts in the development of children and teenagers. But even if there were not, one needs only to look at how often children use an artistic form to express themselves when the words just won't come. In the aftermath of September 11th when we are all trying to come to grips with the violence and devastation in New York City and Washington, isn't it reassuring to know that our children are taught how to deal with their feelings without resorting to physical violence or verbal abuse?

BCS Mission Statement

Bishop's College School, a Canadian independent boarding school founded in 1836, is committed to its students: to provide them with a co-educational, bilingual learning atmosphere which will lead them to a university education. The School seeks to develop fully the individual talents of each of its students, in a safe and caring environment, thus preparing them to be contributors and leaders in the global economy.

Congratulations Cliff on placing 7th in the Canadian National Seniors Golf Tournament. Pat, Sally and Cliff Goodwin with Nancy Layton. (See page 23.)

From the Board Chair

(Remarks made by the Chairman of the Board at School Closing, June 23, 2001.)

*Good morning,
Bienvenue,
Buenos dias,
Salaam, Nin-how,
Kon nichí wa!*

These are six of the many languages spoken in families with sons and daughters at BCS.

Imagine, in the best of worlds, an educational model that brings together bright kids—girls and boys— from around the world, to a beautiful location in a bilingual environment in a great country; add dedicated and capable teachers, and an incredibly rich program of studies, sports and activities: — et voilà, you have BCS.

What are we trying to do here?

BCS tries to teach its students how to live in a community which mirrors the world's diversity, practices gender equality in a real way and does it very well.

I said last year that BCS's formula for success is simple: the more you put in, the more you get out.

And the result? Multi-talented people, who know how to live well and contribute to their community; and who at the same time achieve academic success, which we will recognize today, and go on to enter the best universities in Canada, the US and Europe.

Nancy Layton and Doug Patriquin

Please take note of the people who teach and lead and are responsible for creating and maintaining this environment. They go out of their way to support their students, struggling with the competing challenges of freedom and responsibility.

And BCS will get better.

We have launched a capital campaign, under the superb leadership of Peter White and Pat Webster and the able direction of Barth Gillan and Lew Evans, to raise $15 million for facilities, faculty development and financial assistance. We are seeing the first fruits of these efforts in renovations to the Chapel, wiring of the residences and a new works building. The campaign has had a great start with magnificent commitments from major donors, and the campaign is broadening.

It is worthy of our support.

*Auf wiedersehn
Sayonara
Au revoir, and God bless*

The genius of BCS lies in providing such a rich array of opportunities, from science to soccer, from cadets to climbing, from drama to Round Square.

Academic Excellence Continues at BCS

Director of Academics,
Claude Hackett

My second year as Director of Academics at BCS was very busy and productive, as it was for all teachers and staff who work here. There were many highlights:

- several students won awards for their outstanding work,
- two teachers were honored for their commitment to education and young people,
- BCS teachers participated in a number of meetings to determine how we can improve our academic program, and
- we confirmed our participation in our second evaluation with the Canadian Educational Standards Institute (CESI).

BCS students distinguished themselves in a number of local, regional, national and international competitions last year. Lily Dionne-Jermanovich placed 3rd among 10,000 entries in the Royal Commonwealth Essay Competition; BCS students won 1st, 2nd, and 3rd place prizes and had the largest number of published works in the Montreal Jewish Public Library's First Fruits competition; Lauren Morgan and Luke Kozinski placed 1st and 2nd respectively in the Canadian Association of Independent School's Scholar Competition; several students had their work published in A Celebration of Young Poets – Canada, 2001; Lauren Morgan also received an Honorable Mention in the CBC Short Story Contest, which was also open to professional writers; and finally, four students in Form V received Certificates of Merit in the Canadian National Young Historians Essay Competition.

Catherine Evans and Albert MacDonald were recognized for their contributions to education. Mrs. Evans received the Prime Minister's Award for Teaching Excellence in English, which included a $1,000 gift for BCS to be used at Mrs. Evans' discretion. Mr. MacDonald received the Don Patrick Outstanding Achievement Award for Education from the town of Lennoxville.

This year, BCS will take part in its second (CESI) Internal and External Evaluation. BCS has been an accredited member of CESI since 1995; CESI evaluations occur every seven years for member schools. The goal of CESI is to "develop and promote high educational standards for schools in Canada...while recognizing the independence, integrity, and uniqueness of its individual member schools." Schools are evaluated based on their own mission and objectives as reported in their Internal Evaluation and in terms of the Institute's ten Standards for Accreditation of Schools. These Standards range from the school's Mission, its Academic Program to Plant Management. Today, there are over forty CESI member schools in Canada. BCS will conduct an Internal Evaluation this fall, which will provide evidence to CESI that BCS meets, and often exceeds, the Standards of the Institute. More important, we hope that Internal Evaluation will establish an even clearer direction for the School for the next several years.

Many staff members have benefited from Professional Development (PD) in the last school year. The French, Math, Science, Social Science and English as a Second Language departments took part in PD conferences. The entire BCS Faculty traveled to Stanstead College in late August for a joint session to hear Kathie Nunnely, a high school teacher, mother of four and brain researcher from Utah. Dr. Nunnely spoke of Layered Curriculum and its links to her research. (Those interested can view her work at www.brains.org.) We hope to establish more productive academic links between Stanstead and BCS. Other conferences this fall included Advanced Placement (AP) conferences for English and Biology, a North American conference for Biology teachers and the National Association of Independent Schools' conference for English teachers.

The BCS curriculum has undergone a number of changes for this year. Geometry is being revived in Form IV as a way of providing increased depth of knowledge for those students hoping to have greater success in math in the senior Forms. World History in Form VI is being revised so that it provides a more effective base for students intent on taking AP History in Form VII. AP courses in French Language in Form VI and French Literature in Form VII were solidified for this year. Finally, Ellen Goldfinch, our school librarian, in consultation with Department Heads, has produced the BCS Research and Information Skills curriculum. It represents the skills we feel students should master by the end of each Form.

An English as a Second Language (ESL) resource teacher was hired for this year. Tiffany Crook will be an advocate of ESL students, she will create resources for ESL students, provide support to subject area teachers (evaluation, teaching strategies), and will help create materials for teachers to use with their ESL students.

The '01-'02 year promises to be exciting and hectic with the CESI evaluation added to the day-to-day routine. As with any challenge, however, BCS will achieve excellence and both students and faculty will continue to gain recognition for their achievements.

Teaching by Example...

"I love teaching what I love to do."

Randy Jackson,
Music Teacher

Randy Jackson – music.
Margot Dionne – theatre.
Myles Vivares – art.

The Fine Arts Department, a shining example of BCS at its best!

Excellence and commitment are values shared by the three teachers who guide students on their creative journeys. The strength of the program lies in the strength of the teachers and the strength of the teachers lies in the strength of their passion.

"I love teaching what I love to do" – Randy Jackson on why he teaches. This sentiment is shared by the three teachers and is expressed through their belief that in order to inspire students, they must continue to practice their craft. This process feeds their creativity and passion.

RANDY PLAYS

Randy has been with BCS for twelve years and knows the department and school well. It is with pride that Randy reports a growing number of students participating in the music program. Could it be because they have four bands to choose from – marching, senior, junior and stage – or because they can be part of a creative group or simply because they can have fun making a lot of noise?

Whatever the reason for the numbers, the Music Department is kept busy. Randy and his students will be preparing for three major events during the year: the Christmas concert, the spring concert and of course the cadet inspection.

Randy spoke of his "love of teaching what he loves to do." BCS is lucky to attract such passionate professionals. Perhaps it is not luck; perhaps it is simply excellence attracted to excellence! Not only does Randy enjoy being with the students but he also enjoys his time dedicated to his music. An accomplished musician he continues to perform freelance as well as with several formal groups:

- Quintet Estria – a woodwind quintet
- Musica Nova – a modern musical ensemble
- The Sherbrooke Symphony Orchestra – principal horn

In many Canadian schools the Arts departments are undervalued; not so at BCS where the future is looking good. The Music Department will be moving to the new Hartland Molson Hall. Several challenges face the Department as it moves forward. Some of the instruments are becoming dated and need to be replaced. As well, it is Randy's hope that he will be able to take his music students to play in a variety of music venues, outside of the school, in order to create a sense of pride and accomplishment amongst the young musicians.

MARGOT PERFORMS

Margot is busy signing up students to audition for the BCS Players' Club presentation of Shakespeare's As You Like It. The 60's "back-to-the-land" impulse and the desire of youth to live in peace and love, rejecting the values and mores of the establishment, provide a backdrop for this pastoral comedy.

Margot Dionne,
Drama Teacher

Over the last four years Margot has nurtured the Drama Department. Her warm and caring nature helps students to look inward and discover themselves through the characters they play. Students are expected to go beyond memorizing lines to investigate and learn about their characters and the places they come from. Theatre at BCS is all-encompassing and because of this it should not come as a surprise that drama students are active, energized and curious about the world around them.

Margot Dionne has trained and performed in Canada, the U.S. and England. Before full-time

"Drama students are active, energized and curious about the world..."

teaching she had a successful acting career. A rather obvious question is: "why give that up?" The answer is: she hasn't! Margot continues to act during the summer holidays, to workshop new plays, to record Audiobooks (she narrated Margaret Atwood's The Blind Assassin for which she received an Audie nomination and an Earphone award) and to teach at the National Theatre School. What motivated her to teach high school? An epiphany one day... she took her daughter to her first day of kindergarten and suddenly it struck – she wanted to be surrounded by young and inquisitive people to be able to teach them everything she knows and that is exactly where Margot is. She loves to teach what she loves.

A renowned actress Margot has performed in many major theatres in Canada and the U.S., in film and television as well as:

- Stratford Festival
- Trinity Repertory Company in Providence, Rhode Island
- The Piggery Theatre in North Hatley, QC

The proposed R. Lewis Evans Memorial Theatre with its workshop, dressing rooms, rehearsal space and storage can only enhance the superb work and reputation of BCS drama.

MYLES PAINTS

When Myles attended McGill University he was faced with the decision of whether to continue with his studies to become a biochemist or follow his passion and become an art teacher. Lucky for BCS he chose the latter!

Myles has been teaching at BCS for seven years and in that time has integrated art into other subjects at the school. Art has found its way into other classrooms such as geography (use of painting to illustrate weather patterns) or history (to describe a period in time). His hope is that art will continue to become a part of other subjects and students will continue to build on their art appreciation through varied sources. He loves to teach what he loves.

During the Stoker Arts Festival, held each spring, students demonstrate their accomplishments in a range of creative visual arts to their peers, teachers and the community at large. This offers them the opportunity to explore different media in the Arts and to showcase their talent.

The BCS community is able to appreciate Myle's talent both through his student's exhibits on the school walls and his works of art displayed in the staff's offices. Additionally, Myles continues to lead workshops outside of BCS and to show his work:

Myles Vivares, Art Teacher

- Exhibitions in and around the Montreal area since 1984
- Four solo exhibitions
- Member of Creatio, an art group of 50 professional artists who show their work three times a year
- Student of Ming Ma, a renowned water-colourist from Montreal

The Art Department will be moving to the large, old library location and will have separate rooms for photography, pottery and three-dimensional art.

"The strength of the program lies in the strength of the teachers and the strength of the teachers lies in the strength of their passion."

TEACHING BY EXAMPLE

All three teachers feed their creativity and remain practicing artists. Bravo to them! How lucky the students are to have such dedicated professionals as teachers.

The Fine Arts, at BCS, offer the students a chance to be inquisitive, challenged, creative and tolerant, to be passionate and supported. All three teachers speak of the importance of students being offered the chance to work together as a team to be in a safe environment where they can make mistakes, to be encouraged to reach excellence, to become better communicators and to give of themselves. The BCS arts program helps each student to be contributors and leaders in the global community.

It is not easy to discover what propels the BCS students, teachers and support staff to reach elevated standards of academic success.

The Fine Arts are not the only source of the school's spirit; they are, however, a key contributor to it. The strength of the program lies in the strength of the teaching.

Now we must give those programs the facilities they deserve!

B.C.S. Alumni Association

LENNOXVILLE, QUÉBEC

J1M 1Z8

Dear Alumni,

Over the last year, your board and I have been working hard connecting alumni to alumni, connecting alumni with the school and supporting the goals of the school. It has been a successful year filled with events and activities that promote our mission. In short, we have been friendraising!

I, along with the rest of the world, was deeply struck by the shocking events that occurred on September 11th in New York and Washington. I found myself not only hugging my children a little tighter and telling my loved ones how much they meant to me, but also picking up the phone to call my friends just to "check in". Many of the people I called were my classmates from BCS and I realized once again how precious and enduring these friendships are.

As BCS Alumni, we have gained connections and opportunities from the School and as Alumni Association members we want to give back to the School. We achieve this objective by hosting events such as the post-Annual General Meeting party, the annual golf tournament, drinks at McKibbin's Pub as well as the February Blues Bash. We will continue to host the successful Alumni Speakers Program, where alumni are invited to speak to senior students about what they have accomplished since leaving BCS. David Brodeur (BCS '86) is leading a new initiative this year: Career Day is being held on October 19th. Alumni, from various professions, have been invited to speak with senior students about their career paths.

As we move into the chilly winter months, our Annual Giving Campaign gets underway. I would like to encourage you to consider giving to this important fund. Every little amount adds up and is used to secure the future of excellence at BCS as well as to ensure lasting friendships for others for years to come.

I would like to take this opportunity to acknowledge the hard work, dedication and good humour of two departing board members: Geoff Reford (BCS '83) and Kurt Johnson (BCS '84), both past Presidents. Their banter, quick wit and input will be really missed. We all look forward to Kurt and Geoff's continued friendship as they support our events. Thanks guys and good luck!

We have a busy year coming up. Activities and events are being planned to support our primary goal of pulling old and new friends together to strengthen the BCS network. It is only through active participation that we will meet our objective of friendraising. I would like to invite you to join the Alumni Board and myself in celebrating BCS and together we will build a stronger future.

BCS Looks Ahead

Taking the School to the Next Level

Here follows the report to members of the BCS Association at the Annual General Meeting on 25 October 2001.

What do we need to make BCS even better than it is today?

Let's look at what we have.

We have Sandy Booth and David Dutton and Mark St.

Jacques – and the rest of the Science Department – excellent teachers working with their students in a building that hasn't changed
since it was built in 1963 – teaching a program with equipment that hasn't been upgraded since the Molson Foundation
invested $200,000 in it almost ten years ago.

Look at the Drama
Department. We have Margot Dionne, a professional actress who has played a lead at the Stratford Festival, who last spring performed the reading for the audiobook of Margaret Atwood's The Blind Assassin,
who this spring
will be a guest teacher at the National Theatre
School for a period of six weeks; Margot Dionne who has given her heart and soul to our Drama Department and to the Players' Club for the past three years; Margot Dionne, who has, at times, run drama classes in the team rooms of the new gym complex because our facilities leave so much to be desired.

Look at the Music Department.

Randy Jackson, a performing musician with the Sherbrooke Symphony, with the Quintet Estria and Musica Nova, teaches his classes and conducts his band in the space on the top floor of the Power House – a space where the practice rooms are not sound-proofed and the band room is ill-shaped and poorly heated.

Look at the Art Department. Myles Vivares is an exhibiting painter and he does wonderful things with his students who are wedged into what used to be K Dorm – a space so small that the pottery dust too often mingles

with the watercolours!

These teachers do excellent,
excellent work –
but think: what could they do if the facilities were equal to the talent of the teachers and to the potential of their students!

Look at the library. The 21,000-volume library, now all computer-catalogued, a great facility, but situated in the backwater of the basement of the main school building.

The library must move

Look at the Scholarships and Bursaries. Thanks to the generosity of donors, many of you here tonight, there is now over $10 million in the BCS Foundation. The recommended conservative pay-out is 5% and $500,000 is not enough to maintain the quality of student that BCS has and deserves.

We need more than that. We need to keep the best teachers. We need to enroll the best students.

In order to do that, we have to be able to afford them – not just with

Best teachers and best students their salaries, not just with financial assistance, but also with the quality of the place in which they work.

The 20/20 Vision Campaign is about taking BCS to the next level.

At several points in its history, BCS has seen individuals or groups of individuals step forward. So far in this campaign, there have been over 400 individuals who have done just that and I wouldn't mind talking about each one of them...

Don't worry, I'm not going to.

I will, however, mention Christopher Ondaatje. Many of us know him, or know of him. He is not an Old Boy. He has never served on our Board, but in the early 80's, his daughter, Janet, decided that she wanted to go to BCS. Now she and her father have given a quarter of a million dollars to the BCS Foundation.

Ondaatje Foundation Award and Ondaatje Endeavour

- $20,000 is to endow the Ondaatje Foundation Award – an award for the student who best exemplifies the love of learning, either by personal example or by assisting others. It is an award that goes to the heart of our academic program.
- $230,000 is to endow the Ondaatje Endeavour – a world-class challenge adventure for a selected few students and their teacher. This Endeavour will do for our Adventure Training program what the 20/20 Vision Campaign will do for the School. It will take it to a new level – a level which, until now, we could only dream of.

Then there's the younger generation.

There's Geoff Belisle of the Class of '88 – Geoff Belisle, who played Frederick in Pirates of Penzance and half the plant in Little Shop of Horrors – Geoff Belisle, who at the age of 31 rose to the challenge and is single-handedly funding a scholarship by donating $5,000 a year for the next five years.

And then there are the women of King's Hall. They never went to BCS for more than a dance or two or three. But make no mistake, the culture of their School is very much part of BCS today. So far, they represent our largest donor group – nearly half the total number of donors. In fact, there have been almost 200 King's Hall donors who have contributed over $1.4 million to the campaign.

$1.4 million from women who never went to BCS. Christopher Ondaatje didn't go to BCS; Geoff Belisle did. They have all shown the kind of leadership that is typical of BCS – a kind of leadership that stays with a person throughout his or her life.

This has been proven to us by the leadership of Senator Hartland Molson. Senator Molson, as you all know, kicked off this campaign with an incredible gift of $5 million.

It is staggering that he is so generous to our School.

There were no strings attached to this gift. He did not designate it to endowment or to buildings or to anything. He did not ask for his name to be attached to anything. Rather he trusted the wisdom and the leadership of the School to use it correctly.

He hoped that his $5 million would serve as an incentive to others to help so that BCS would truly move to the next level.

A lot of people – a lot of people – have heard him, have made gifts. In fact, today, just over a year since we launched the 20/20 Vision Campaign, we have received in pledges over $12 million.

We're not going to start the building until the rest of the money is raised. I'll repeat that: we're not going to start the building until the money is raised.

Endowment is too important.

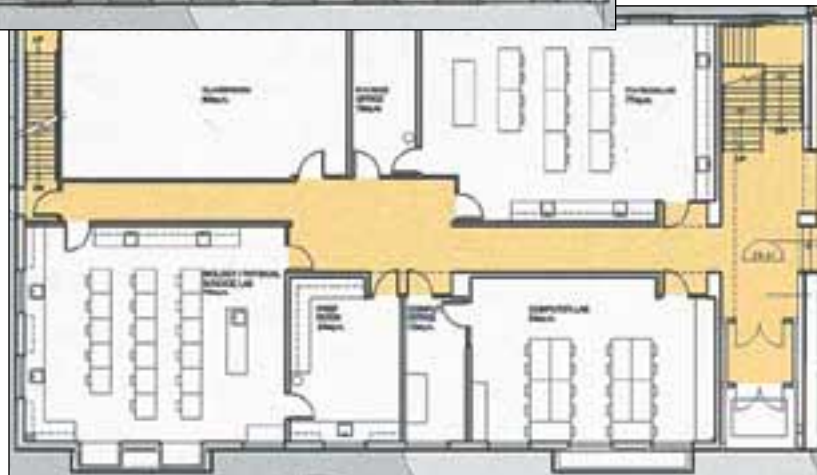

Everybody in the BCS constituency will be asked to participate in the Capital Campaign. This is not Annual Giving. This is not going to happen every year. But now is the time when we need everybody to help to take our School to the next level. Please, yes, maintain your Annual Giving. Please also, help BCS to become even better than the School that we're so proud of today.

2001 Admissions Report

Admissions

I appreciate working with families who want the very best for their children – families who know the value of a boarding school experience and quickly become aware of the family-like environment for which BCS is so well known.

The Admissions Team of Maggie George, Theresa Loubier and Nathalie Saad (BCS '98) have had a great year and met our goals for the 2001 academic year. At School opening, we welcomed 256 students from 25 different countries world-wide.

Eighty-six percent of our students are placed in English First Language classes; 22% were placed in First Language French. At 46%, the number of girls at BCS is at an all-time high.

BCS boasts a strong family environment; this year 47% have a family connection with BCS. We have 21 "legacy" students who have had a parent or grandparent attend BCS or KHC. The number of students who are here with a sibling or have had a sibling attend is 96. There are also five additional students who have had cousins here.

The Admissions Office has several new initiatives underway for this year. Nathalie Saad is our BCS Liaison Officer and she will be in contact with all current and past Francophone families and alumni as part of a marketing survey for Admissions. Nathalie will also be visiting French private schools in Montreal to give Admission presentations to Grade 5 and Grade 6 students. She is currently in contact with parents to set up Information Sessions in Quebec City. BCS has also translated the "Resource Book", the "BCS Promotional Brochure" and the "Campus Day Flyer". Advertisements will be placed strategically in French newspapers and magazines throughout Quebec.

The primary recruitment focus will be in Montreal through the QAIS and CAIS Boarding School Fairs, as well as Information Sessions in private French Elementary Schools. Our current families are doing an excellent job spreading the word about BCS. The Admissions Office will be in touch with all of them to continue to enlist their help in our recruiting efforts.

Another initiative that was very successful last year and that we will repeat this year is our "BCS Campus Days" – this year on:

- November 16th, 2001
- February 1st, 2002
- March 8th, 2002
- April 22nd, 2002
- May 27th, 2002.

A total of 41 families joined us on campus to speak to the Head of School, Nancy Layton, and to faculty and staff. They came for a tour and lunch in our Dining Hall. Many students also took advantage of being here and wrote the required entrance tests.

The Admissions Team is looking forward to the beginning of our new Admission Cycle and encourages our current families to continue to promote BCS.

Should you need further details or if you would like us to send an invitation to a specific family, please contact the Admissions Office at 819-566-0227 ext. 215 or e-mail at admissions@bishopscollegeschool.com. We would also like to hear from any families who may wish to support BCS with an Information Session in their hometown.

Thank you for your support. I look forward to working with many of our current BCS families in this upcoming recruiting session.

The graduating class of 2001 finished their education at BCS with some of the most impressive academic averages in recent years. 100% of them are off to the college or university of their choice. Moreover, they were offered more than $600,000 in scholarships to top universities in Canada and the USA.

Why are these kids so happy to leave BCS?

50 Years On...

KHC's RAMBUNCTIOUS CLASS GETS TOGETHER...

Thirteen of us from the "Rambunctious Class" of KHC '51 (an epithet ascribed to us by a feature writer from the Montreal Gazette the previous week) gathered in Montreal on Friday, May 11th to celebrate our 50th year since graduation. And what fun it was! This beautifully planned event was orchestrated by a small group of Montrealers (Sally Drummond, Sue Whitall and Claire Molson), and began with a dinner party given by Sue and Boyd Whittall at whose house we all met – some of us for the first time in 50 years!

The Montrealers, of course, were there in force: Sue Teakle Whittall, Sally Sharwood

Drummond, Anne Boright Gregory, Claire Faulkner Molson, Diana Drew Togneri. The other Quebecers included Babs O'Halloran Bignell, Susan Angus Walsh and Jane Ogilvie Lefebvre. The remainder were from further afield: Judy Morton Mairs (Oakville, Ontario), Susan Wigle Ford (Toronto), Sarah Grant Stalley (Halifax), Jean Lindsey Titus (Marblehead, Massachusetts) and Judy Morrell Devitt (Holmes Beach, Florida). An added bonus is that husbands were invited to this dinner, and nine of them were able to attend. The presence of Boyd Whittall, Michael Drummond, David Gregory, David Molson, Bruce Mairs, Peter Walsh, Jean-Pierre Togneri, Rufus Titus and Frank Stalley added considerably to the general festivities. While we were getting reacquainted, the "boys" were discussing the state of the nation, and other mind-boggling issues. (Apparently these conversations continued the following day when four of them gathered for their own lively lunch at an old Montreal watering hole). During the course of the evening many bottles of "this and that" were consumed, and a splendid dinner of fresh salmon, salads and sweets ensued, beautifully prepared and catered by the Montreal General Catering Department, together, of course, with Sue.

Later on, Claire arose and addressed the gathering in her inimitable style, combining nostalgia with wit, and had us all rocking with laughter. It was an evening of shared memories, of catching up, of much laughter, photo shoots, and it all ended with the feeling that it couldn't possibly be fifty years since we were all doing this together at KHC.

The next day, Saturday, ten of us met again at the Hillside Tennis Club on Côte des Neiges for a super lunch, the highlight being iced lemon squares with – of course – Mr Burt's famous chocolate sauce, both made by Sue. Scrumptious! Sally began the proceedings with our traditional Latin grace:

Quae hodie sumpturi summus benedicat deus.

Per Jesum, Christum Dominum Nostrum. Amen.

Remarkably, most of us remembered the words!

Messages were passed on from people unable to attend, and specifically from Mary Fellows Sulzman (Bristol, England), who wrote at length and included a recent photo, and from Robin Bocock Phillips (Redwood Meadows, Alberta), who sent greetings in the form of a very clever card based on the 1951 Per Annos cover with several old photos. We sang "Forty years On" and perused an "historic" booklet containing a collection of Gilly's "Dear Girls" letters. We reminisced about our fortieth reunion lunch at the Hillside that Gilly attended – the last time many of us had seen her, for she died shortly afterwards. The theme of her 1951 letter to us addressed her unflagging aspiration that, as privileged students, we would all develop a spirit of adventure and provide leadership on a community level. One of her favorite quotes, included in that letter, was by Comte Saint Simon, a contemporary of Louis XIV: "Get up, Monsieur le Comte! You have great things to do today."

We remained at lunch until we were virtually asked to leave, as preparations were under way for another function. So, with great sadness, we hugged and kissed and bade our farewells on a very rainy Saturday afternoon.

It should be noted that Judy Morrell Devitt managed to attend two 50th reunions in consecutive years, coming all the way from Florida to do so. Could it be that the rest of us should to plan ahead for KHC in 2002?

— Sarah Grant Stalley

Footnote: A week later, on our way back to Halifax, we detoured very briefly to Compton. It was twilight and raining gently. KHC appeared through the mist – no people, no cars, no lights. It seemed like a time warp, and all the memories re-surfaced.

40 Years On...

On September 28th, 29th and 30th, the KHC Class of 61 gathered in Montreal, first at Sue Khan's house and then at Francie Montgomery's. I had the unnerving pleasure of an invitation, and so, armed with my wife on one hand, and Gilly's famous bust on the other, I ventured forth. Once again, I realized that no one has reunions like KHC Old Girls have reunions!

Not yet recovered to meet the Bulletin deadline of October 1st, the ladies have not submitted an article, but these pictures tell part of the tale!

30 Years On...

Dear KHC '71,

It is Wednesday, July 28th, 2001. A perfect sunny, summer day. Edwina pulls into my yard exactly at the agreed moment (as usual) and I am ready (highly unusual). We are to rendezvous with Louise at Tim Horton's, then head on in to Montreal. We arrive at the Hillside Tennis Club a little early, and after a quick consensus, we agree that Jill has stepped out of a car across the street and is waving frantically in our general direction. Jahanne and her mother soon emerge and smile. We see two ladies walking towards us with huge smiles, obviously talking sideways to each other about who we all are.... Anne has cut off all her long locks and is taller than Crause, which takes a little getting used to.... We turn in the other direction and someone, with an unmistakable "Compton Confidence" stride is walking towards us. She smiles, and we all recognize Willia. More hugs and hi's. We pause for a moment to assess who's missing from our merry group. DeeDee and Patsy. Twenty minutes have now passed; DeeDee arrives, but Patsy gets bogged down with clients and can't get away. So close and yet so far....

Now we're seated outside beside the tennis courts at a terrific round table. Photos of kids are rotated clockwise and counter-clockwise with lots of chatter, and "who's kids are these?" Frustration builds as we all try to carry on conversations with who's beside us, as well as listen to what's being said across the table. Then the teasing and comments start, and we are back at a typical Compton dining room table. It's great. I feel 30 years younger and these people sitting around me are part of my life again. Things settle down as we decide to give each one a chance to recap 30 years of living. It's a little unnerving, and everyone is extremely modest about their accomplishments. (Fascinating lives! Boy, you all missed so much!!!) Before long, three hours have passed so we sadly say our good byes. Lots of hugs again.

So now, I propose, in an effort to reunite us, a compilation -- a summary of "us". Send me your e-mail with a little ditty of what you're doing these days, and where you're at. I will put it all together and send everyone the list.

Although alot of you were missing, you were not omitted from our hearts.

Looking forward to hearing from many of you,

—Barb

"A few years ago, I became very nostalgic and interested in reconnecting with KHC classmates and other school chums. In 1997, I saw Heather Rogers Thompson, Peggy

Ross Stewart and Susan Minnes Palocshi in Toronto. We all had a wonderful time catching up. The following year, we went to California for vacation and spent a few days visiting Heather Allan King, in Nappa, CA. An added bonus was seeing her sister, Deidre. Last year, following my son's wedding on Long Island, we went up to Stowe, Vermont to visit Jane Townsend Haggett and her husband, Stan. Andy Rutherford Burgess came for the afternoon. I'm so glad we had a chance to renew friendships before she died this past spring. From there, we progressed to Knowlton, PQ where we stayed with Barb Drummond Brodeur and Jim. Anne Henderson Wood (KHC '51) and husband Tom, came for dinner. More reminiscing! This summer, we vacationed in Banff and Calgary, where I was able to spend some time with Anne Lucas Suche and her husband, Tony.

"In April, we had a lovely visit from Anne McNally Budge and her husband, Don, who were just starting a four month long camping, biking and hiking trip through several National Parks.

"Next year is our 50th reunion. I do hope we can get something together as I would love to see other classmates and friends who played such an important part in my early years."

A Daughter Remembers...

Phyllis Elder Matheson, Class of '32, died peacefully in her sleep at her home in Victoria on May 19th, 2001, in her 86th year. She went to Compton the same year Gilly did and I went to Compton in 1967 for Gilly's last year. Mum started in 1930 and I left in 1970, so we spanned "Forty Years On". Later Neil went to BCS, when it had joined with KHC.

Phyllis Elder Matheson
KHC '32

Phyl, Joan Winser and Lucy Morton Sharp worked tirelessly, and usually amidst gales of laughter, to help make the merger and the girls' new home a success. Mum was forever going off with them to meetings in Lennoxville, in blizzards, heat waves or floods. One story was told of an overland short cut that brought the intrepid "3 little maids from school" to a flood road. Phyl was sent ahead in her wellies poking the way with her furled umbrella, to assure the driver that they'd get through to the other side. They made the meeting on time, somewhat damp.

Phyl had a boundless love of people; their strengths, their foibles, their gifts. She reveled in the humour and the little ironies of life, the chuckles of human nature. After yet another BCS/KHC business meeting at lunch in a men's club, she told me how she loved to see these sharp-eyed businessmen order for dessert what their nannies would have served them for tea: rice pudding, caramel custard and tapioca.

Phyl was one of "Gilly's Girls." Her world revolved completely around people: family, schools, churches, the Red Cross during the war and after, Meals-on-Wheels, The Montreal Day Nursery in Little Burgandy, tutoring special education students in Lachine. She stayed with commitments tirelessly and drew others to join her. Whether driving meals weekly to East End Cold Water flats or raising funds for KHC and BCS, she did it for the people, not to see her name on a plaque.

When Mum saw me off on the old train to Compton she said, "Work hard when it's work time, play hard when it's play time and keep your own standards." By the last she meant hers of course, but later, from my wise adult perch, I realized I couldn't have learnt any better.

Charles Lapsley Ogden Glass

I first met Oggie Glass in the Spring before my New Boy year which was 1950. I was a member of the Prep 1st XI Cricket and we were playing our annual match in Ottawa against Ashbury. I did not realize it at the time but during that match I reached the zenith of my athletic career. I bowled a hat-trick, (three Ashburians in a row went down for ducks), almost braining Mr. Brain, the Ashbury Umpire, in the process. When we stopped for tea a nattily-dressed man walked up to me and said, "How did you do that?"

"Luck, I guess, sir."

"What's your name?" he asked.

"Cowans," I said.

"Are you Doug's son?"

"Yessir."

"Tell him Oggie Glass sends his regards. We both failed Form IV at BCS together."

Little did I know that I had just had a conversation with the Headmaster of Ashbury College who the following Fall would become Headmaster of BCS.

Oggie Glass and I did meet again the following September, but the circumstances were not so personal. I was a New Boy in the Upper and on the day that we arrived, we were told that the Headmaster would talk to us. We gathered together in the old Hooper Library; Headmaster Glass walked in in gown and hood and said. "Welcome to BCS. You are all New Boys. Well so am I. We're going to learn the ropes together. I wish you luck. You're going to need it, but I'm going to need it more than any of you. Let's help each other."

As Headmaster, Oggie Glass was a huge presence around the School. Rhodes Scholar, superior athlete, accomplished public speaker and debater, strict disciplinarian, he set the standard of excellence for us all. His fierce competitive nature brought him to most school games and many practices, but he also kept his eye on academic standards. initiating the dreaded "Colour Board" to spur on the inept and the lazy. From opening prayers in the morning until well into the evening, when he often visited the Houses during Prep, his influence upon masters and students was indisputable. He taught Current Affairs to some classes; he coached 1st Football with Sam Abbott and Ted Pilgrim, and he often roamed the halls and locker room making sure that everything was ship-shape. If he found anything not to his liking, we heard about it next morning at Prayers. Before any away trips, we were always told to, "Reflect credit on your School." His pride in his School was unparalleled and his greatest wish was that every boy and master would feel the same way.

When I was Headmaster, as soon as Oggie arrived in North Hatley each Spring from Bermuda where he was living in those days, he would take me out for a martini lunch at the old St. George's Club. I would fill him in on what was going on. He was always concerned about the School, but he was also interested in me as he was with all his "Old Boys". On one of these occasions we were talking about writing student reports and I reminded him what he had written on mine. "A doubtful case." He frowned and said. "I always felt badly about that."

"Why?" I said. "I never gave you a chance to write otherwise. Anyway look how things worked out. I've spent my life trying to prove you wrong."

"Then, it worked," he said.

Without a doubt, Oggie Glass was a great Headmaster and I have always considered myself fortunate to have called him friend.

Bruce Fowler is retiring after 28 years at DVM (Domtar Vancouver Mills). He retires from the post of Vice President of Marketing & Sales, having started as the order desk clerk.

When asked about a favorite memory from the past 28 years, Bruce recalled: "I was encouraged to be myself.... I was given the leeway by each and every different ownership to be myself and to do my job in my own way with my own foibles."

Those of us who remember Bruce as a classmate (and he's pretty hard to forget!) will know how wise each "different ownership" was to do that. — L.E.

"Although life since BCS has been exciting and challenging, every so often I stop to remember. I experienced many of my life's highlights during those four years.

"After leaving BCS, I attended the Norwegian Infantry Officer Training School. It was a one-year intensive program preparing us for sergeant rank. After graduation I was a sergeant at His Majesty the King's Guard in Oslo, where I worked as an instructor and second-in-command of a platoon. Having spent two years hard at work, I decided to travel around the world for eight months with a friend. We traveled around South East Asia, Australia, Fiji and the U.S. I even went to see Naoya Kawata in Japan. Needless to say, I had an amazing time. The next four years were spent at the Norwegian School of Management (MBE program, major in Finance), and I recently graduated.

"During the fall of my last year I went on exchange to the University of Florida for four months. (It was fun to witness an American election.) I am currently working as a management consultant at McKinsey & Co in Oslo. If things go according to plans, I will transfer to the New York office after a few years. Maybe some of you are working there?

"I really miss BCS, and I hope to come back for a reunion some time soon. I've had most contact with Tolly Bradford, Anabel Pinero, Jon Coad and Mayco Quiroz, but I'd love to hear from more of my classmates!

After graduating from Form VI in 2000 at the top of the Form, Sarah LeBaron von Baeyer took a very unconventional and courageous path. She decided to live in Japan with the Kato family (Anna, Class of '00, and Rinko, Form VII this year), and to study as the only North American student in a Japanese school.

Sarah LeBaron von Baeyer BCS '01 goes to Japan.

To prepare herself, Sarah had taken courses in Japanese at Bishop's University, but she admits that no amount of study could have prepared her for the four-minute speech in Japanese which she had to give in front of almost two thousand students during the first week of school. The year was a challenge for Sarah, but one which brought with it enormous rewards. People fortunate enough to be on her e-mail list were regularly entertained, charmed, challenged and amazed by her anecdotes and thoughts.

Sarah returned to Canada, now almost fluent in Japanese. She was awarded a major scholarship to study at Oberlin University where, as she said in her most recent correspondence "there is just so much that seems interesting, it's hard to know what NOT to get involved in." She is thinking of majoring in East Asian Studies, but is also keen to continue in English and creative writing.

A GOOD WIN FOR GOODWIN

When Pat and Cliff Goodwin left BCS three years ago after 29 years of service, God smiled down on them (well, on Cliff) and said, "He's too young to retire, but he deserves a job that will allow him to do what he loves." As a result, Cliff is the Secretary/Manager of the Maritime Seniors' Golf Association, and he has a business card to prove it!

Captain Cliff with his PEI team.

This past summer Cliff has reached new heights in his golfing career. He was the PEI Senior Champion and as such was the captain of the four-man team that represented PEI at the RCGA Canadian Senior Golf Championship. The PEI team placed 5th in a tie with Quebec, their best showing ever. Cliff also did very well in the individual competition placing 7th in Canada.

Well done Cliff! We look forward to hearing about all your future successes.

"Kip" Cobbett has given exemplary service to BCS and in May, he was named to the Heneker-Williams Society. Here follows the citation:

"If you want to get a job done, give it to a busy man." While this adage was not written for Stuart Hanson "Kip" Cobbett, it might well have been. When he graduated from Form VII after six years at BCS, he was described by the Headmaster in these terms:

[Kip] has been a constant supporter of Bishop's College School during his years and proved himself as a capable leader. That he is commanding Officer of the Cadet Corps, Prefect in the School, Vice-Captain of the First Football Team, member of the First Teams in hockey and cricket, Editor-in-Chief of the School Magazine and active in many other areas, indicates a well-rounded, serious and enthusiastic person.

That was in the spring of 1966.

During the next ten years, Kip was active on the Alumni Association Board, serving as President from 1978-1981. His resignation from that office coincided with his nomination to the Association Board, which he served for the next fifteen years, including a term as Chairman from 1988-1991. During the late 80's - early 90's, Kip also sat on the Board of the BCS Foundation where he took his turn as Chairman from 1993-1995. In the midst of all this activity, from 1988-1991, Kip undertook to chair the Blueprint for the Future Capital Campaign.

It was only a transfer to London, England, that brought this unparalleled service to a pause. Even there, as a member of the BCS Advisory Board – and more important, as an unflagging supporter of BCS – he helped to organize two BCS Alumni events.

During the difficult economy of the late 80's, Kip's unflinching confidence in the School's future was infectious; his steady and decisive hand on so many aspects of policy ensured that BCS developed responsibly and his powerful support of the teachers encouraged them to make BCS better.

"A constant supporter of Bishop's College School... a capable leader..." The Headmaster got it right.

François de Sainte Marie (BCS '65) spoke at the Heneker-Williams dinner to nominate Kip to the Society. Here follows some of what he said:

We say that the heart of BCS is its teachers and its kids. And that is true in real time... But it's what BCS volunteers do in the past that determines [our] future...

Yes, Kip chaired the Capital Campaign that gave us the new gym, but less visible and of greater consequence, he recognized the need to reform the board, to establish budgetary controls, to establish short to long term financial planning, to build a strong endowment fund, to stay focused on serving our local market. He saw these things and the made them happen. He made them happen at a time when his professional career was at its most demanding. A BCS Chair, as I now know, inherits all the BCS problems that the public rarely sees. He was wonderful counsel to me when I was Chair, and he told me how his heart would sink when the Head would call with more problems. Yet he never ran from the problems. He fixed them. He never complained. He never asked for reward. He never refused BCS and when he left, he'd made it look easy.

Today, the Board is well structured and organized and ready to take on the world. Our finances are in order, our endowment fund is strong, our good reputation is growing. Kip was the right guy with the right stuff who out of generosity did the right things for the future of BCS.

Kip's six years at BCS were not all joy, and his years of service were not always easy, but he has always known a good school when he sees one. He has given back – given back much more than he got (some people do that) – and BCS is better for it and grateful.

We have a lot to do...

Lewis Evans

It is said that in moments of extreme stress, we find out what we're made of. We learn more about our compassion, about our strength of spirit, about our heart. We learn about our desire for revenge and about our desire to help.

September 11th, 2001, was such a time and it was fascinating – and comforting – to be here at BCS. We are fortunate to have St. Martin's Chapel as the place where every working day begins. By the time Morning Break began at 10:15 on that day, students with known New York or Washington connections had been informed of the events that were unfolding. The word went out that everyone was to go to the Chapel and within five minutes, the School was empty and the Chapel full. Perhaps half the people there already knew about the attack when Nancy Layton began with the words, "I've never had to make an announcement like this before...." Then, true to her style, she gave a clear, brief account of what had happened so far, emphasizing that it was too early to know who might be responsible. Chaplain Trish Peacock then asked everyone to pause for a short prayer for those whose lives must surely have been lost.

As quickly as the Chapel had filled, so it emptied and office phones were made available to any student who might want to contact family or friend. Classes resumed, but lesson plans were pre-empted by current events.

Lunch was subdued as many students and staff hovered by whatever television or radio they could find. Crease went ahead as scheduled and by the time dinner rolled around, Ross Hall was as noisy as usual.

The next day, about 75% of the School arrived at Chapel well before the bell, and they sat in reflective quiet.

A catastrophe of this magnitude cannot but touch a community as far-reaching as our extended BCS family. The uncle of one young Form III boy was among the New York firemen who died trying to save lives. Another of the boy's uncles – also a New York fireman, but on holiday in Florida – drove home to search for his brother, and miraculously, he found his body, lying with the body of the person he was trying to save.

While we know that many BCS/KHC Alumni have suffered personally in this time, as we go to press, we know of no Old Boy or Old Girl who was lost, and we are thankful – and hopeful that this will remain the case.

And now, our small international community that is BCS looks out at a less certain world, and we hope that saner heads and kinder hearts will prevail.

In his address to new parents at the beginning of the year, Peter White said: "This is a marvelous school. It has a character unlike any other. It has a reach that extends around the world and a vision to graduate young men and women set on making that world a better place."

We have a lot to do.

—Lewis Evans,
Director of Development and Alumni Relations
